

Addressing Systemic Discrimination FOR REAL!

This workshop will provide participants with an understanding of what systemic racism is and where it comes from. Learn about Canada's long history of systemic and institutional racism that often gets overlooked and see how these issues have created a profound ripple effect that is still felt today. Participants will also learn the common mistakes most organizations make when attempting to create a diverse and inclusive environment for employees and clients. Discover what should be done on an individual and organizational level to produce meaningful, positive change.

Learning Objectives:

- Understand the complex nature of addressing diversity, equity and inclusion
- Understand the value and importance of inclusive practices
- Gain knowledge of foundational truths that will increase desire to be part of the solution
- Empower individuals to develop and implement action plans
- Gain tools and strategies to create a diverse and inclusive environment

This training is ideal for:

- All internal and external service providers
- HR managers and recruitment leads
- All supervisors, managers, and team leaders
- All executive leaders
