Man arrested for stealing book on ethics

LOUISVILLE, Ky. | University of Louisville police say a Prospect man is getting a tough lesson on ethics that probably can't be found in a book.

The Courier-Journal reported that campus police arrested [REDACTED] on Wednesday and charged him with stealing a textbook called "Resolving Ethical Issues" from the University of Louisville's Health Sciences Center. Police say Davis later tried to sell the book to Gray's College Bookstore in Louisville.

The arrest report said surveillance video cameras captured the theft and attempt to sell the book. - Associated Press
